Boarding Program

WELCOME TO

The Boarding Program

A treasured tradition with a proud legacy, the Boarding Program at Ashley Hall welcomes Upper School girls (grades 9th through 12th) from across the nation and around the world to experience one of the most prestigious all-girls' schools in the South. Set against the backdrop of Charleston, one of America's most historic and beautiful cities, Ashley Hall's educational program is shaping the female leaders of the next generation.

Architectural Digest has designated Ashley Hall as South Carolina's most beautiful private school.

Why Boarding at Ashley Hall

Rigging a sail and measuring wind speed. Working alongside medical professionals in a scientific laboratory. Conducting in-depth research and partnering with local experts to enrich the local community. These are just some of the hands-on learning opportunities open to Ashley Hall girls.

With a close-knit campus and limitless opportunities to engage with the surrounding area, students build meaningful and lasting partnerships within the community, including the Medical University of South Carolina, the South Carolina Aquarium, the Gibbes Museum of Art, the College of Charleston, the Lowcountry Maritime Society, the American College of the Building Arts, the Ronald McDonald House, among others. In glimpsing the many ways in which they can connect and contribute, Ashley Hall students embrace their role as active citizens.

From its founding by Mary Vardrine McBee in 1909, Ashley Hall has remained faithful to its original mission: To produce educated women who are independent, ethically responsible, and prepared to meet the challenges of society with confidence. This mission is realized in everything we do, from campus traditions to our innovative curricula and teaching philosophy. It inspires both faculty and students to engage in a vitally enriching educational community that is supportive, collaborative, and intentionally tailored to the way girls learn best.

Ashley Hall at a Glance

Ashley Hall's beautiful campus is located in historic Charleston, South Carolina, one of the most friendly and safest cities in the U.S. It is also one of the most popular, having recently been named the number one travel destination in the U.S. by Conde Naste Traveler for ten years in a row and Travel + Leisure's best city in the U.S. for the eighth consecutive year. Architectural Digest has designated Ashley Hall as South Carolina's most beautiful private school.

Residing in the Elizabeth Rivers Lewine '54 House, a renovated historic mansion just across the street from the main campus in the heart of downtown Charleston, Boarding Program students are immersed in the full Ashley Hall experience, a rich blending of a classical education innovated for the 21st century learner and oriented to meeting the intellectual, emotional, physical, and spiritual needs of each student in every phase of development. The Boarding Program combines the comfort of living in a home environment with the added dimension of intercultural interactions and dialogues with fellow students.

Ashley Hall's downtown Charleston location is close to cultural and historical sites, shopping, and restaurants that provide a variety of weekend activities. Ashley Hall fosters strong community partnerships with The Medical University of South Carolina and the College of Charleston, both located only a few blocks from campus. Glittering on the edge of the Atlantic Ocean, the Lowcountry coastal landscape offers an abundance of maritime forests, marshes, beaches, and rivers primed for exploration with purpose.

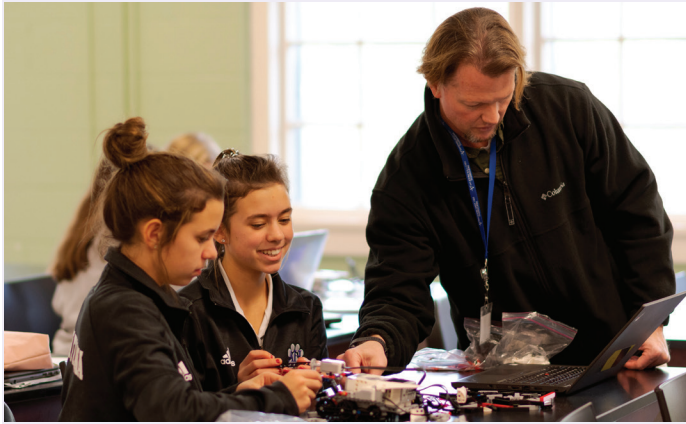

Students studying at Ashley Hall are better prepared to matriculate into universities because of the critical thinking and problem-solving skills taught in discussion-based humanities courses with a focus on primary sources and the hands-on learning gained in research-based science, mathematics, and technology courses.

Ashley Hall is committed to individualized attention toward and integration of its boarding students with the wider school body. A limited number of Boarding Program students are accepted to the school each year.

Ashley Hall's interdisciplinary curriculum connects humanities and the arts to the science, technology, engineering, and math (STEM) fields with innovative programming, aligning the great thinking of the past with the challenges of the future.

Extra-curricular activities, including athletics and arts opportunities, build a well-rounded girl who values her strengths and confidently accepts challenges.

Senior Project: Students must apply for course consideration. The year-long course is research based, culminating in a final research paper and presentation.

Offshore Leadership Program: An experiential and interdisciplinary course of study culminating in a ten-day open water voyage in which students work as crew members aboard a tall ship in the Atlantic Ocean and develop teamwork and leadership skills.

English as a Second Language (ESL) course: This class offers foundational support to foster acquisition of the English language for non-native English-speaking students. The course has a strong focus on improving English to strengthen individual alignment to the Ashley Hall curriculum.

Community Partnerships: Students partner with many local organizations, including the Medical University of South Carolina (MUSC), the College of Charleston, and the South Carolina Aquarium, among others. From conducting research and supporting philanthropic causes to participating in internships and special programs (including the Summer Neuroscience Institute) students create close ties to the local community.

International Travel Opportunities: Faculty-led domestic and international optional travel programs offer transformative experiences that allow girls to gain an understanding of cultures and perspectives. Ashley Hall's new shared Italian campus, Palazzo Leti, is located in Spoleto, Italy and offers a home away from home in a restored 16th century property with a Renaissance garden.

College Counseling: College Counseling helps each girl to find a college compatible with her goals and abilities. From ninth grade, students are offered unlimited one-on-one meetings and the chance to meet with upwards of 50 college representatives on campus. As juniors, all girls meet regularly with the Director of College Counseling, who works individually with students on applications, essays, and scholarships.

Student Engagement: Students benefit from a robust offering of extracurricular activities, including the Investment Group and the National Honor Society, that allow each girl to pursue her passions. Students also have the option to create new groups inspired by their interests. The Big Sister-Little Sister program builds relationships among different grade levels, and the Society of International Sisters (SIS) promotes integration and friendship between international students and the community. Boarding Program students have dedicated seats on the Student and Honor Councils.

BOARDING RESIDENCE SPOTLIGHT:

The Elizabeth Rivers Lewine '54 House for Global Studies

179 Rutledge Avenue | Constructed 1876 | Renovated Fall 2016

BY BETSY KIRKLAND CAHILL '79, CHAIR OF PRESERVATION SOCIETY OF CHARLESTON BOARD
EXCERPTED FROM THE SPRING 2019 ISSUE OF PERSPECTIVES

The Elizabeth Rivers Lewine '54 House for Global Studies, or simply the “Elizabeth House,” is an exceptionally lovely Italianate mansion opened in 2014 after a renovation that was both respectful of the house’s architectural integrity and creative in its use of space. The fourteen-foot ceilings were impeccably restored, the nine exquisite fireplaces retain their ornate decoration, now repaired and cleaned, and the restored piazza overlooks a simple boxwood garden.

The Elizabeth House is not a dormant architectural showpiece. Rather, it houses a flourishing Boarding Program that advances the School’s goal of providing its students with truly global perspectives. The architects, Evans & Schmidt of Charleston, designed practical modern spaces that coexist with this beauty and make the boarding program possible. Today, girls living at the Elizabeth House enjoy the spacious dorm rooms upstairs.

Some classes are held in the dining room, where Ashley Hall girls sit around an oversized Harkness™ table – the hallmark of the discussion-based, student-led classroom model that allows Upper School students to hone their debating and critical thinking skills. The Elizabeth House at 179 Rutledge Avenue is another salutary melding of architecture and program, form and function.
